THE ART OF COMING BACK TO YOURSELF

In our fast-paced lives, we often search outside ourselves, for validation, certainty, love, belonging, and peace. This retreat is an invitation to gently shift that search inward. Through movement, creativity, nature, and mindful reflection, participants will reconnect with themselves, regulate their nervous systems, deepen emotional awareness, and cultivate self-compassion.

FAQs

Who is this trip for?

This retreat is for anyone who wants to slow down, reconnect, and build a better relationship with themselves. It's not only for people who feel lost or burnt out—it's also for those who simply want to care for themselves a little more intentionally, so life feels lighter, fuller, and less likely to break them down over time.

Where does the trip start?

The trip begins from Kasol, and travel to and from Kasol is included as part of the experience.

What kind of stay can I expect?

You can expect a comfortable and thoughtfully selected stay designed to complement the retreat experience. Accommodation is available on a sharing or single basis, depending on the package chosen.

FAQs

Do I need prior experience in yoga or art?
Not at all. All sessions are beginner-friendly and designed to be accessible, gentle, and enjoyable for everyone.

What should I carry?
We recommend carrying comfortable clothes, walking shoes, a light jacket, personal medication, sunscreen, a reusable water bottle, and anything else you may need for a mountain stay.

Is this a difficult trek or adventure trip?
No. This is a retreat-style experience with light hiking, wellness sessions, and creative workshops. It is designed to feel restorative rather than physically intense.
